

THE PICKLE: Handmade products make great gifts for summer birthdays—but where to find them?

THE FIX: Craft Lake City, Utah's first annual outdoor alternative arts festival, appeals to both expert DIY artists and creative types who've never gripped a pair of knitting needles. In this post-Stitch 'n' Bitch era there's no telling what vendors will showcase. Inspired by festivals like the Bazaar Bizarre and sponsored by SLUG magazine, Craft Lake City aims to present screened posters, progressive crafts, reconstructed clothing, hand-pressed books and other items that represent a new wave of handy folk. For a preview of things to come, check out Craft Sabbath the first Sunday of every month. Craft Lake City, Gallivan Center, 239 S. Main, Saturday, Aug. 8, 2-10 p.m. CraftLakeCity.com, MySpace.com/CraftSabbath
